

Here's how a CSA works.

You purchase a "share" from a farm, which entitles you to weekly deliveries of fresh produce throughout a designated season. You pick up your share at the farm or at a convenient drop off site. This arrangement gives you access to the freshest produce available at reasonable prices and a direct connection to "your" farm and food source. Farmers benefit by having a reliable market and a direct relationship with their customers.

Join a CSA Farm!

Become part of our local farm ecology and economy. Part of the beauty of a CSA is you can know the farmer and find out about her or his specific practices. Many of these farms are certified organic by the Washington State Department of Agriculture. Many that are not certified also meet organic standards. Find a farm that captures your interest, call and request more information.

Make a difference!

When we purchase food grown locally, we not only receive great food, but we begin to change our local landscape. Local farms contribute to greater food security and cultural identity, preserve green spaces, attract wildlife and help circulate money within the local economy.

REALLY LOCAL REALLY FRESH

Look for the
PUGET SOUND FRESH
label when you buy produce.

Only farm products that are grown, raised or harvested in one of the 12 counties that border Puget Sound can be identified as PUGET SOUND FRESH.

For better flavor and better health, ask at your local market for PUGET SOUND FRESH.

Help keep our farmers farming,
and our lands and families healthy.

Cascade Harvest Coalition

The Cascade Harvest Coalition is a Washington non-profit organization dedicated to building a strong, sustainable regional food system in Western Washington. Since 1999, the Coalition has worked to build capacity to effectively address issues affecting the health and viability of the food and farm system. Through our programs and services, we work collaboratively with others in the community to address the critical issues of farm viability, farm transition, farmer education, farm product marketing, consumer education and community development. We work to build bridges between the farming and non-farming communities.
